Descriptions:

Full Member: Full Members must be manufacturers – this classification includes establishments engaged in the mechanical or chemical transformation of materials or substances into new products. These establishments are usually described as plants, factories, or mills and characteristically use power driven machines and materials handling equipment. Establishments engaged in assembling component parts of manufactured products are also considered manufacturing if the new product is neither a structure nor other fixed improvement. Also included is the blending of materials, such as lubricating oils, plastics resins, or liquors. Sic classifications 2000-3999, NAICS 3360 – 339999.

Allied Member: Allied Members are non-manufacturing firms, closely allied with and important to manufacturers. Typically, these are material suppliers and other wholesale establishments.

Associate Member: Associates are all other classifications of companies who may provide services to manufacturing firms. Examples are construction, retail, transportation & warehousing, information, finance and insurance, real estate, and other similar types of companies.

Certified Vendors: This special category features Allied and Associate members who have met specified performance criteria and have agreed to adhere to standards of service.
